

Mercater for Offshore Investments

For a whole variety of reasons there has been a huge surge in the popularity of offshore bonds over the last decade.

One of the acknowledged reasons for the popularity of offshore bonds with UK based IFA's and their clients is the huge investment choice and flexibility that these bonds can offer. However such choice can indeed bring its own problems. Some offshore bonds offer a fund universe of literally thousands of funds.

Choice on such a vast and complex scale can be quite overwhelming especially when there is regulatory pressure requiring the demonstration of a sound process behind the selection of recommended funds and, indeed, their ongoing suitability for a particular client.

A sensible and obvious solution for many IFA's is to pass the investment management to specialist discretionary fund managers who are focused on the markets and whose research capabilities and investment experience allow them closely monitor today' large fund universe.
